southern THEORY

The global dynamics of knowledge in social science

Connell (2008) has described Southern theory as informed by the view: “that colonised and peripheral societies produce social thought about the modern world which has as much intellectual power as metropolitan social thought, and more political relevance.” (p. xii)

and argues that:

“Since the ground is different, the form of theorising is often different too.” (p. xii)

Handwritten manuscript on aged, torn paper. The text is written in a cursive script, likely from the 17th or 18th century. The document is heavily damaged, with significant portions missing, particularly along the left and bottom edges. The visible text includes several paragraphs of prose and a large section of a list or ledger with multiple columns and rows of entries. The list appears to be a detailed account or inventory, possibly related to military or administrative matters, given the use of terms like 'Company', 'Rank', and 'Pay'. The paper is yellowed and shows signs of significant wear and tear.

Alienation

Marx

- From his or her relation to his or her product
- From his or her relation to his or her productive capacity
- From his or her relation to other people
- From his or her relation to our species

Roy

- From our relations with the Earth

Man's relation to his or her product

Alienated from our hands

Jobless

Man's relation to his or her productive activity or capacity

Alienated from our bodies

Joyless

labour is external to the worker.
Therefore he does not affirm himself but demies himself, does not feel content but unhappy, does not develop freely his physical and mental energy but mortifies his body and ruins his mind.
The worker therefore only feels himself outside his work, and in his work feels outside himself.

(Marx, 1844, pp. 73-74)

Man's relation to other people

Alienated from our feelings and minds

Joyless and mindless

Man's relation to our species

Alienated from our feelings, minds, and spirit

Joyless, mindless, and spiritless

Man's relation to the Earth

Alienated from the land, and spirit

Landless, and spiritless

From Alienation to Liberation

Alienation = Oppression + Mystification + Isolation

Liberation = Awareness + Contact + Action

Thank you
